Stuart Miller Solicitors is staffed by 'incredibly driven people' and is split into four departments - police station, Magistrates' Court, Crown Court and serious crime and fraud. Recognised for handling the most serious of matters, its recent caseload includes gang-related murders, conspiracy to supply drugs, possession of firearms, revenge porn and money laundering. Joint team leads Mohammed Zeb ('who has an extraordinary following from clients who are loyal to him') and Abu Kibla ('an outstanding director with a razor-sharp intellect') is assisted by 'extremely bright solicitor' Anna Sidgwick.
