Lincoln House Chambers fields advocates across a range of practice areas from modern premises in Spinningfields, Manchester. We pride ourselves on our ethos of excellence in advocacy and in meeting the demands of our clients, even when dealing with cases of the utmost gravity and complexity. For over thirty five years this approach has allowed Lincoln House Chambers to maintain a lead over our rivals with caseloads that include many of the major criminal cases of the day. Today we consistently aim to meet the demands of modern legal practice. Our team of advocates practice in a variety of regulatory and disciplinary fields and in growing areas of civil litigation. We can count among our clients the leading solicitors' firms across Manchester and the UK and many of the key figures within the prosecuting authorities. Planned expansion and organic growth now means that there are 13 Queen's Counsel and 53 juniors in chambers with a number of members holding judicial appointments in tribunals and in the higher courts. Most members of chambers are qualified to accept work on a direct access basis.
