Glynns have been helping people who have suffered injury following medical accidents since 1982. We specialise in injury claims, undertaking no other legal work. This specialisation ensures that we have the skills ready and waiting to help you in the most efficient and economical way. No one expects to suffer at the hands of a medical professional, but when you do you need to ensure that the professional who will help you recover compensation has the necessary expertise. Medical negligence law is a particularly complex area. In addition there are also the emotional issues to deal with. Glynns are acutely aware of the physical, emotional and financial burden which medical negligence causes to patients and their families. Our specialist unit offers support and guidance as well as the technical expertise to ensure that such claims are fully investigated and then pursued.
