Loch Associates is an employment law practice providing commercial employment law advice and HR support to employers and executive employees. Based in the South East with offices in London and Tunbridge Wells, our team of employment lawyers and HR consultants act for clients right across the UK in a variety of sectors. Our lawyers and human resources consultants use their specialist employment and human resources knowledge and skills in this complex legal area combined with a commercial approach to provide our clients with a valuable insight to make the right decisions. Founder of boutique employment law practice Loch Associates, Pam Loch is a dual qualified lawyer with extensive experience in contentious and non-contentious employment matters having acted for employers and employees and advising on all aspects of employment law.
