Bonaccord primarily works with innovative companies and inventors around the world who want to commercialise their ideas, both scientific and artistic. We have particular expertise in life science but also work across a range of other sectors and support clients from sole consultants to multinationals. We also work with academic institutions to improve their commercialisation processes and offer training courses at academic and practical levels on a variety of legal and business topics. Mediation and facilitation services are also offered. Founder, Patricia Barclay, has spent most of her career working in industry and so favours a pragmatic and business focussed approach. Clients benefit from her extensive international experience and contacts and practical understanding of what truly matters to business.
